Vol. XXII.

With this issue the MOHAVE COUNTY MINER enters upon the twenty-second year of its existence.

Miss Florence Hyde, of San Jose, is visiting with Mrs. and Mr. H. H. Watkins, in Kingman, and will remain during the winter months.

Sheriff Lovin will build a stone addition to his residence on Beale street.

Last evening the local lodge of Elks initiated one candidate into the mysteries of the order.

E. F. Holliday, the well known Mohave county mining man, is visiting with his family in California.

John F. Withers has gone to Phenix and will extend his trip as far as Los Angeles on business connected with the firm of Lovin & Withers.

Len Leutzinger returned this week from a six weeks trip through California. His wife remained in Los Angeles for a short visit with relatives.

H. L. Harris and Judge M. Redman have gone to the Blue Marie mine, in the Cedar country, to do the annual assessment work on that and other mining claims.

J. D. Richardson, of Union Pass, was in Kingman this week and reported that work on his mining properties was progressing nicely and that good milling ore was being shown up.

J. N. Cohenour is at the Snowball camp, where he is doing the annual work on some mining claims owned by himself and Al. James. The claims are looking well and carry good values in gold.

The Albuquerque fair will open next Monday, October 12, and will continue all of next week. In addition to the regular territorial fair the Southern Carnival company will hold forth during the week.

Big gold bricks continue to be shipped from the Gold Road mill to the mint. Each week shows an increase in the size of the bar extracted from Gold Road ores, the richer part of the vein having been reached in the stopes.

Along the Colorado river in the Mohave valley many water wheels are being put in for the purpose of irrigating small strips of land. Many of these wheels are said to be doing good work and are capable of raising large supplies of water. Next year many small farms will be irrigated by means of these wheels.

A splinter driven into the hand or any part of the flesh, can be extracted by steam. Nearly fill a wide mouthed bottle with very hot water, place the injured part over the mouth of the bottle and press it against it and the suction thus produced will draw the flesh down, and in a minute or two, the steam will draw out both splinter and inflammation.

Fears of a cloudburst, its unsanitary condition, as well as its undesirable location, will soon render Bisbee a town of the past, although her mines will continue their great copper output. A new townsite has been laid out at Don Luis, three miles distant. The new town is designed for residence purposes, but in a short time the entire business will undoubtedly center there.—Florence Blade.

Some of the mines at Searchlight have made peace with the miner's union and have gone to work. The other mines have brought in strike breakers from Joplin and other points, but as they are unused to quartz mining they are not the class of miners the mine workers want. It is thought that the camp will soon resume work under the old auspices. Skilled miners are hard to get and in the Searchlight country both miners and operators have learned a lesson that may do them some good.

C. R. Cooper, the shoemaker, has removed his family from Chloride to Kingman. They are a desirable acquisition to Kingman's population.

Fred Kellogg, who at one time was in business in Chloride, is visiting in Kingman. Fred made considerable money during the palmy days of Bakerfield and is still in a prosperous condition. All the old time boys are pleased to see him again in Mohave county.

The boarding house at Gold Road will be run by Lovin & Withers hereafter, which is an assurance that the boys will get the best grub the market affords. Heretofore, while plenty of grub was supplied the boarding house there was much complaint about the manner in which it was dished up to the men.

People who live in this country little realize the value and purposes of the dust storms, but the following will enlighten them greatly: "Dust is essential to the well being of the animal and vegetable kingdoms of the world. It is the medium through which we obtain diffused daylight, for the whole atmosphere is charged with minute particles, which reflect sunlight. To dust again we owe the bright blue of the sky, which its particles, rejecting other tints, reflect, and the varied and changeable colors of the sea are also attributed to the same simple and effective agency. We are told that heavier particles, which lie lower in the atmosphere, absorb the blue rays and reflect the red and green and orange which are seen at sunset or when the air has been surcharged with dust by some volcanic eruption. Without this medium the earth could not enjoy the blessings of cloudland and of gracious rains, for aqueous vapor needs a nucleus to form upon, that it may gather and descend. Yet another function of this useful product is to supply valuable top dressing to the soil.

Confessions of a Priest.

The government is just now making appropriations of water from the Colorado river, the first being in Riverside county, where 4,000,000 miners inches is appropriated. E. S. Perkins, of the geological survey, is making locations and filings of the necessary withdrawals. He will file on about seven million miners inches in this county this month. It is expected that the work of building the great Bulls Head dam will be under way inside of the next year and that the land below the big ditch will not be thrown open to location by the public until the completion of all work necessary to get water on the lands. At present it is said practically all the lands to be covered by the canal have been taken up under the homestead act, but the fact that the government has withdrawn these lands will undoubtedly act as an estoppel to the proving up of the "sooners." It is impossible to get water on the mesa lands along the river by other means than a canal such as is contemplated by the government.

Mrs. George S. Briggs, who accompanied her husband to the Mogollon mountain country on a hunting expedition, arrived in Kingman Thursday evening and will visit with her parents. Mrs. E. W. Woods accompanied her to Kingman.

Law Blakely is mill man at the Ramrod mill and is said to be doing good work. Newspaper men of Mohave county have to be versatile fellows and of a peripatetic order.

The Commercial is fitting up new rooms and renovating the old rooms of the hotel. It is the only place in town that runs a dining room in connection with the house.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

No one who is acquainted with its good qualities can be surprised at the great popularity of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It not only cures colds and grip effectually and permanently, but prevents these diseases from resulting in pneumonia. It is also a certain cure for croup. Whooping cough is not dangerous when this remedy is given. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. It is also pleasant to take. When all of these facts are taken into consideration it is not surprising that people in foreign lands, as well as at home, esteem this remedy very highly and very few are willing to take any other after having once used it. The Pace That Kills.

A tragedy at Fort Worth led the Telegram to picture the life of a boy surrounded by all the good influences that home can bring—a loving mother, devoted sisters, and every pleasure provided. Refinement, duty, fear of God, thrift and morality are taught him in that home, and he has every opportunity to follow the path that leads to happiness and long life. Away from the home other influences are brought to bear. As a child he is encouraged to forget that which is told him at the mother's knee, and wherever he turns when out of hearing of mother's counsel and advice, he is urged to those things which are foreign to the lessons of the family fireside. As he grows older year by year, the outside influences become stronger, and he is awayed by the apparent glitter of the pace that kills and forgets that which is told him at home. He follows the jack o' lantern of the fast life, he becomes fascinated by it, and deeper and deeper he looks into it. As the child laughs with delight at the movement of the myriad of colors which are manipulated as the kaleidoscope is turned, so this young man chuckles with pleasure at the dazzle of the life by which he is attracted. The child peering into the kaleidoscope sees the pretty colors only, and does not reckon that they are made to look pretty and at tract, and that when taken from the setting they lose their charm. The young man watching the changes of the colors in the kaleidoscope of life sees only the brilliancy, and looks not beyond. He follows the brilliancy from day to day, year by year, until at last there is an end, and that end is a tragic one. As he follows the delights of that life, he is lost to shame, to dignity, to refinement, and to morality. He is shunned by the associates of his early life, by the friends of his family, and finally by the family itself, and lower and lower he sinks, reaching finally the level which that life will surely bring. At times it is the drunkard's grave, again it is the gambler's end, possibly he has a lucid interval when he sees the depths which have been reached and remorseful for a moment he finishes it by morphine or bullet, and occasionally he takes one or more of his companions in sin with him. Such a man born to the world of sin, seeks not to raise himself to that height where salvation which is promised may be reached, but allows the bad that is in him to rule.
